PAN-AMERICAN UNION MAY BE REORGANIZED

But Prospect of Dominating Political Body Not Expected at Capital

MUCH JEALOUSY SHOWN

Delegates Who Have Attended Sessions for Many Years Talk Carefully

Washington—Any fear that the Pan-American Union will be changed into a governing body of political character is held by diplomats here to be groundless. And the opposition is not confined to the American government at all but to other countries which frankly say they do not believe they wish to have their diplomatic problems subject to the consideration or comment of other countries.

In theory the idea of a Pan-American league, which would function like the Geneva league in some respects, has made headway and the discussion at Havana of the projected re-organization of the Pan-American Union has been regarded as inevitable. The American delegation, however, has been unwilling to place itself in the forefront of the opposition lest it prove to be a rallying point for Anti-American sentiment.

SOME ARE BACKWARD
The problem of equality which has also in theory been accepted has never in fact been acceptable to many of the countries south of the United States. For instance, Haiti, the Dominican republic and some of the Central American republics have been regarded as more or less backward compared to Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and some of the other advanced states. In diplomatic discussions under the proposed re-organization of the Pan-American Union, Haiti would have the same right to pass on what Chile and Peru might have as a controversy between them as would the United States or Argentina. Haiti were to be denied such right and any such thing like a council of the league powers set up at Geneva, the concord of the Pan-American Union would be seriously disturbed.

Thus far the Union has gotten along harmoniously because each nation has regarded that body as a clearing house for commercial information and as a means of stimulating uniform action on treaties or conventions in which common action was essential. But the United States has never been able to arouse much sympathy when it tried to get unity of action on political questions, in fact its policy has been so constantly thwarted that the whole idea of Pan-American political action has been more or less abandoned in recent years.

NE TAKEN SERIOUSLY
The late Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil who participated in both the 1914 and 1915 conferences used to say that it was politically dangerous for any ministry in Latin-American to join with the United States in supervising even remotely the affairs of any other country because the cry of interference or intervention in internal affairs could be raised as a basis for internal political attack. And if no cognizance were taken of disorder inside Latin-American countries, the United States on the other hand, he conceded, would be in difficulties with European governments insisting on protection of their nationals.

BREWERS ASSOCIATION
HEAD IS OPTIMISTIC

Milwaukee—(AP)—A prediction that the Volstead law will be slightly modified this year was made by Marcus C. Maegerlein, Chicago, president of the United States Master Brewers association in a speech here Thursday night. "I am an optimist," he declared, "I feel we are approaching a crisis. I believe that before the year is over, we shall have a slight modification of the Volstead act. I have letters from master brewers in all parts of the country which indicate my optimism is not unfounded."

Beaver Dam Plotters
THREATEN TWO WOMEN

Beaver Dam—(AP)—Mrs. Augusta Kruger, a widow, and her daughter, Ella, are being guarded and their whereabouts kept secret by county authorities here while investigation is being made of a blackmail plot in which the women were threatened with death unless they left $500 for the writer of a note left on the hood of their automobile.

Mountain Wilderness Lies In Path Of The 'Lone Eagle'

BULLETIN
Cartagena, Colombia—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, off for his 400-mile hop to Bogota, the capital of Colombia, took off from the Boca Grande flying field here shortly before nine o'clock Friday morning.

Cartagena, Colombia—(AP)—The trail of the Lone Eagle Friday led inland from the sea, over the mountains of Colombia. The mountains and the fogs which rise around their rugged peaks made the journey doubly dangerous.

Four hundred miles of flying lay before Col. Charles A. Lindbergh before he reached the secluded mountain capital of Bogota.

he reached the secluded mountain capital of Bogota, nestled in the shadows of Montserrat and Guadalupe, has never entertained a renowned flyer, for it had been feared that to invite any one to fly through the banks of clouds which encircle the mountain might be inviting the flyer to court disaster. It took Lindbergh four hours and a half to fly to Cartagena from Colon, Panama, Thursday. He estimated the distance at 400 miles. The weather during the flight was ideal, he said, and a wind at his back helped him make good time.

Former 'Miracle' Star
IS ATTORNEY'S BRIDE

West Chester, Pa.—(AP)—Miss Raymond P. Smith, who, when 19 years old, startled her friends by jumping from a fashionable finishing school to stardom in the original production of "The Miracle," is the bride of William Gaston, New York attorney, and a member of an old Massachusetts family.

Despite efforts to keep the marriage a secret, it became known soon after the ceremony was performed here last Thursday.

Her husband, who is a few years her senior, will continue with his law practice and work on a new play he is writing.

BYRD PREDICTS NO FUTURE FOR FLYING

Conqueror of North Pole Tells Ripon Audience Gravity is Drawback
Ripon—(AP)—Force or gravity will keep aviation in the back seat among methods of transportation, Commander Richard E. Byrd, conqueror of the north pole and Atlantic oceans by air, said in an interview at Ripon college Thursday.

There will never be more than one-fifth as many airplanes as there are now automobiles, he said, because small machines have only air beneath them while in the case of land and water vehicles it is possible to make repairs or wait for assistance. But a stalled airplane must immediately find a landing place, which will never permit its popularization, he said.

Commander Byrd said planes would become so safe and compact, however, that any average person can repair them. Trans-Atlantic flying will also be in common in less than 15 years, he predicted. "Although I will not further our exploits until I have conquered the south pole next year, I predict that the Atlantic will be crossed in both directions by other aviators in 1928. There is bound to be a great loss of life, however, because of inexperienced aviators going beyond their skill."

REV. SIMON P. NICOLAS OF MARQUETTE IS DEAD

Milwaukee—(AP)—The Rev. Simon P. Nicolas, S. J., dean of men at Marquette university for three years, died Friday morning at St. Joseph's hospital. He was 55 years old and had been ill for several months.

He came to Marquette in 1924 after wide experience as an educator. His first teaching experience was at Marquette in 1904 when he was principal of Marquette academy and director of athletics of the university. He later taught at John Carroll university, Cleveland; was principal of Loyola academy, Chicago, dean of the college of arts of Detroit university, returning to Marquette in 1924.

SMITH GIVEN APPROVAL OF LEGISLATORS

Administration of New York Governor Is Sanctioned by 42 to 19 Vote in Assembly

Madison—(AP)—The Assembly Friday adopted a joint resolution expressing approval of the "splendid progressive administration" of Gov. Al Smith of New York. The vote was 42 to 19 after the resolution had barely escaped rejection by a 34-25 vote.

The senate was in no mood to pass resolutions Friday. After killing a couple of them, it concurred with the assembly in one cutting off all additional resolutions except those relating to the conduct of business.

Senator Markham's resolution asking the university regents to investigate the connection of E. R. Jones with persons interested in the drainage of Hudson marsh was defeated 15 to 7. Mr. Jones is state drainage engineer and a member of the university faculty.

The debate over the Jones resolution grew acrimonious. Senator Markham charged that at one time, Mr. Jones had dealings with a Chicago man who, he claimed, headed drainage interests. Senator Hunt said the resolution showed the disadvantage of having ex-officio members on state committees and boards. He contended such members never a success, and that they had caused damage to the highway and educational work of the state. Senator Blanchard urged that the charges against Mr. Jones be brought directly to the university regents.

Senator William Titus of Fond du Lac, in defense of Mr. Jones, said he offered an example of an "excellent man being attacked by innuendo." The senate Friday joined with the assembly in approving the action of the United States senate in refusing a seat in that body to Frank L. Smith of Illinois. By a vote of 17 to 9 it adopted the assembly resolution which also expressed approval of the part played by Senator Blaine and Senator La Follette in denying Mr. Smith a seat.

KEEFE TAKES STAND AT PLUMMER HEARING

District Attorney Flatly Denies He Knew Raid Victim Was Taken to Hotel

Oshkosh—(AP)—Rebuttal testimony in the hearing of charges of malfeasance of office against Sheriff Walter B. Plummer of Winnebago developed several new points Thursday.

District Attorney Frank H. Keefe, the petitioner in the case, was on the witness stand the greater part of the session Thursday. He related his experience with the sheriff, saying that he had the most friendly feeling for Plummer before these "convictions" were made.

The district attorney told of having ordered a raid on the hotel operated by Mrs. Bertha E. Ekins last Monday night. He said Ekins had been arrested and taken to the home of Plummer and Dr. William H. Reid, a close associate of the mayor.

"We accept the challenge. When our fight is over, the challengers will be sorry. We shall work harder than ever to break the game back of this double outrage."

A veritable "bomb trust" may be uncovered when detectives get to the bottom of the affair, Deputy Police Commissioner O'Connor said.

KEYSTONE ELECTION RECOUNT UP AGAIN

Senate Sub-committee Votes to Recount Ballots in Wilson-Vare Scrap

Washington—(AP)—Recount of ballots cast in six Pennsylvania counties in the 1925 senatorial race between William S. Vare and his Democratic opponent, William B. Wilson, will begin at once by a senate elections sub-committee.

Vultures Only Remain In Brigand Stronghold

Managua, Nicaragua—(AP)—An armed band of 100 men was on the peak of El Chapote and the last traces of the rebel general Augusto Sandino's occupation of this last known stronghold, had been destroyed.

From the crest of El Chapote, mountain 5,000 feet high, Maj. Archibald Young, who led the marines in their advance, said that he and his men had seen the last of the rebels and their ammunition.

Sandino's followers were understood to have been scattered when the marines gained an advantage in their campaign to drive the rebels into isolated districts, cut off from food and ammunition.

Sandino, who is said to have never been driven from El Chapote, was believed to have been wounded in the aerial bombardment which signalled the beginning of the attack on the mountain almost two weeks ago. Aviators who made the attack said 40 rebels were killed in the bombardment.

Vultures, indicating that the rebels had died in haste leaving their dead unburied, were the only signs of life seen by marines who flew over the district later.

The landing of supplies for the rebels has struck a snarl at the port of Corinto.

Stavedores were again on strike after a committee appointed to investigate their grievances reported that none existed.

A bitter battle is being fought by the Liberal and Conservative press of Managua in regard to the political situation.

A suggestion that former president Chamorro should be deported as a disturbing element was made by the Liberal newspapers. The Conservative papers' reply was that Gen. Jose Moncada, former Liberal commander-in-chief, should be deported. They said he was secretly aiding Sandino and that a son of his was a captain in the Sandino forces.

REBELLIOUS JURY TACKLED REAL JOB IN SEAT REQUEST

Portland, Ore.—(AP)—A Federal court jury here today demanded cushions for the jurors in the jury box and then for the jurymen only government and red tape.

The jurors' request was granted. The jurors' request, however, they refused to be taken to United States Marshal Clarence Hotchkiss, who referred them to Postmaster John M. Jones, custodian of the building, who referred the request to the post-office department at Washington.

IBANEZ IS REPORTED TO BE SERIOUSLY ILL

Noted Spanish Author Gained Fame for Books and Translation into Movies

Montone, France—(AP)—Vincenzo Ibanez, noted Spanish author, is seriously ill at his villa here. He is suffering from a grave complication of bronchitis and diabetes.

The condition of the writer, who is now in exile from his native land because of his opposition to the present regime, is regarded as critical.

Vincenzo Ibanez has been a noted author, poet, politician and lecturer. His most famous works are "Blood and Sand" in 1913, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," 1918, and "Mare Nostrum." All three of these books were published in translation in the United States and also were made into motion pictures.

Politically, Ibanez is a Republican. Early in life becoming an impassioned political actor and suffering exile, he spent several years in prison for his opposition to the present regime. He was returned to parliament on eight occasions by his native city.

C. OF C. OFFERS TO HELP TENANTS IN BURNED BUILDING

Civic Chamber Extends Sympathy and Offers Help to Fire Victims

Officers of the chamber of commerce will be available for the use of every person or concern which suffered loss as a result of the fire which destroyed the Irving Zuehlke building Wednesday evening. It was decided by the retail trades committee of the chamber at a meeting Friday morning. The committee also announced that it will secure offices for the fire sufferers in the chamber store and office, rent free, until they are able to locate again permanently. All of their stenographic work will be handled at the chamber office.

The committee decided to send letters of sympathy stating its willingness to assist in any way possible to the many who lost their homes and businesses. The letters will be signed by the chamber secretary and R. T. Gage, retail committee chairman, and were instructed to personally call on the tenants.

Thursday and Friday, Feb. 16 and 17, were designated as community day for speakers at the chamber. The club was placed in charge. The week of Feb. 27 to March 3 was set aside as "Spring Public Week." During that week the merchants will feature new spring fabrics in their advertising, but will have no special sale events.

The committee decided to assist in the Boy Scout financial campaign on Feb. 15, 16 and 17 and in Boys' Week from Feb. 20 to 27.

It was reported that the committee is seeking two prominent men in public life for speakers at the chamber. The speakers will be invited to give a banquet and meeting of Appleton merchants early in March. Members present at Friday morning's meeting were R. T. Gage, David Bretschneider, W. C. Fish, Chris Mullen, John Heintzinger, John Neller, Henry Marx and W. W. Frank.

HURRY RESERVATIONS FOR CORBETT FAREWELL

A request was issued Friday from the office of the chamber of commerce, urging residents of Appleton who are planning to attend the midwinter forum meeting of the chamber at 6:15 Tuesday evening at the Conway hotel, to return their reservation cards immediately.

The reservations must be in at once so preparations can be made for the crowd. A large attendance is expected as the affair also is a farewell party for Hugh G. Corbett, retiring chamber secretary, who has accepted the position of secretary of the new Kenosha chamber. Local speakers will honor Mr. Corbett and several tokens of appreciation for his work here will be presented.

BROADCAST PICTURE OF NEW YORK MAYOR

Scientist Explains Method by Which Photos May Be Sent Through Air

New York (AP)—Mayor James Walker has the distinction of being the first person whose photograph was ever broadcast by a radio station over its regular wave-length, so that what ever happened to be tuned in could hear it.

Thousands of listeners heard a prolonged squeal, lasting for 90 seconds and punctuated by a swift, regular crackling, as station WEAJ of the National Broadcasting company put the picture of New York's mayor on the air.

Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson of the General Electric company, inventor of the broadcasting and receiving outfit used, explained the process. The light from an automobile headlight was focussed through a lens into the photograph to be sent, which was revolving. The image, as reflected by a beam of light, was broken by the notched edge of a revolving disc, falling upon a photo-electric cell. By this process the light waves were converted into electrical impulses, amplified and transmitted in the usual manner.

QUARTERS UP AGAIN BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Crowded Conditions Necessitate Several Officers Leaving State House

Madison (AP)—The problem of furnishing additional space for state officers has again come before the legislature. It was a popular question during the regular session.

Since then the Stolen-Campbell office space contest has come up and brought to the foreground the question that often faces the state superintendent of public property and the capital housing commission. Already there are securities division, automobile and drivers' license department, highway commission, state traveling library and numerous other state offices housed outside the capitol, in rented quarters. Mr. Campbell, chief clerk of the land commission and Mr. Stolen State humane agent, were housed in the same office. They did not get along. Mr. Campbell was moved and the land commission has brought suit against the governor, state engineer and superintendent of public property to restore his quarters to him.

The resolution was passed by the assembly and is now before the upper house. Under it a committee of legislators would be appointed to investigate suitable sites for a state office building or acquiring an office building and report thereon with recommendations to the 1929 legislature. The committee would consist of two senators, three assemblymen and the attorney general, acting in an advisory capacity.

The resolution was introduced by Assemblyman Oscar Schmiede Outagamie-co.

'Do Appleton Men Powder Their Noses?' Youbetcha!

Do Appleton men use cosmetics?

Several druggists and clerks answer in the affirmative. "Oh, they do," said one, with an air as though she were divulging the darkest of secrets. "Yes, some of them even get powder puffs and compacts. I imagine that many of the compacts are bought as birthday gifts and the like, but I know that there are fellows who 'carry their own.'"

Parisians, 'tis said, are setting styles for men as well as for women—and they have decreed the use of cosmetics. Appleton druggists are of the opinion that Paris has gone too far when it decrees rouge and lipstick for males.

"Cosmetics?" said another. "Just what do you mean by cosmetics? Powder? Yes, lots of talcum for after shaving. Face powders? Yes, some, especially among the younger generation; they use the face powder after shaving and usually want brunette shade. We sell perhaps a half dozen boxes a month for this purpose. Perfumes? Very little, but quite a bit of toilet water.

"Rouge? Lipstick? Eyebrow pencil? No, not yet. This is as far as local men have gone in the trends of Parisian style, according to drug store sales of the stuff.

"We sell quite a bit of powders and perfumes," said a young lady, "and we slip 'em expensive stuff most of the time. Yes, some of them may buy the things for their wives or sweethearts but a great many buy the articles for their own use."

In all parts of the world, a few in a community will follow the lead of Paris, even in the use of the extreme rouge and lipstick. One sees even today remnants of the once popular Windsor tie which Paris introduced for men not so long ago.

LAW MAKERS PROBE INCOME TAX BILLS

Two New Measures Taken Before Legislators Friday Contain Changes

Madison (AP)—Two new income tax bills are expected before the legislature Friday. One of them was introduced by Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark and the other by Senator William A. Titus of Fond du Lac.

Cashman's bill provides that taxes to be collected in 1928 should be assessed on the net income of 1926 or the corresponding fiscal year. It also provides that the tax commissioner should certify the assessment rolls to clerks of municipalities except in cities of the first class.

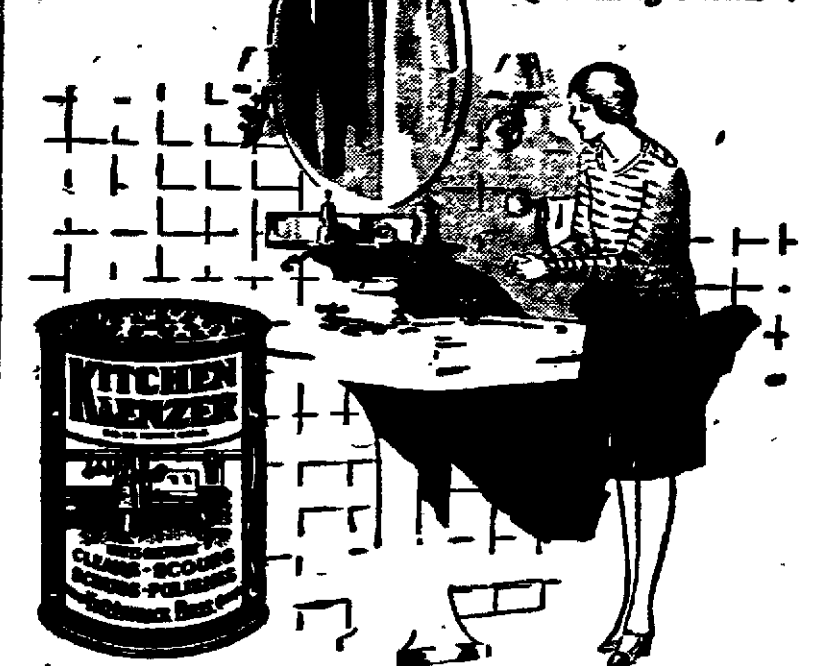

Tax assessments on a calendar year basis shall be payable when personal property taxes are payable, the bill provides.

Division of income taxes, under the bill, would be remitted and accounted for like state and county taxes except that delinquent taxes would not be charged to the county or credited to the municipality.

Senator Titus' bill would do away with the section of the income tax law relating to personal exemption of guardians.

HEADLIGHTS MUST CONFORM WITH NEW STATE REGULATIONS

Chief Prim Issues Warning to Motorists; Officers to Make Check

Headlights on Appleton automobiles must conform with the state laws or the owner of the car will be arrested according to orders issued this week by George T. Prim, chief of police.

Police officers have been instructed to stop motorists whose headlights seem exceptionally bright or too dim. The motorists will be required to have the lights tested and repaired and report to the police officer who stopped him to show that the lights have been made to conform with the laws.

All head light testing will be done at official testing stations which are equipped and conducted in accordance with standards, rules and orders fixed by the industrial commission. Only one such station has been established in Appleton up to the present time, but other individuals or garages which comply with the law may open testing stations, Chief Prim said.

DELITGEN IS INSPECTOR
Officer Albert Delitgen of the local department has been appointed inspector of the testing stations and no stations will be allowed to operate unless they have been approved by him.

Testing stations may charge a fee of $1 when a motorist's headlights need adjusting, but if the lights are found to be in good condition no charge can be made.

"The state law on headlights is designed to aid the motorist and to prevent accidents," said Chief Prim, "and strict compliance with all regulations will help traffic as well as the police department."

MUST FOLLOW RULES
All headlights must be so focused and of such power that the beams will enable the driver to distinguish a person or other substantial object at least 200 feet ahead of the car. The lights must be so adjusted that they will not cause a glare or will not dazzle approaching drivers, according to the state laws. The testing stations are established so that motorists can determine whether the headlights in their cars meet requirements.

"Many motorists are using red lights on the running boards of their machine in violation of the state laws," Inspector Delitgen said. "Red lights are permitted only on the rear of automobiles and placing them in any other position on an automobile so that the red light can be seen from the front or sides causes the owner of the car to be subject to arrest and punishment."

SCHOOLS TO DEBATE AUTOIST'S INSURANCE

Students in 100 Schools Will Debate and Hold Finals at Madison

Madison—(AP)—The advisability of a state law requiring liability insurance to a minimum of $5,000 of all automobile drivers will be the debate topic of more than 100 high schools, which are members of the Wisconsin High School Forensic association, according to Miss Almere Scott, secretary. Miss Scott is director of the department of debating and public discussion of the University Extension division of the University of Wisconsin.

The finals of the contest will be held in the capitol here in late March or early April. Last year many members of the Legislature, in session at the time, were among the listeners to the debate on the imitate and referendum.

To simplify the contest, the state has been divided into three main sections, northern central and southern. Each of these is divided into three districts. Various triangular leagues are formed within each district.

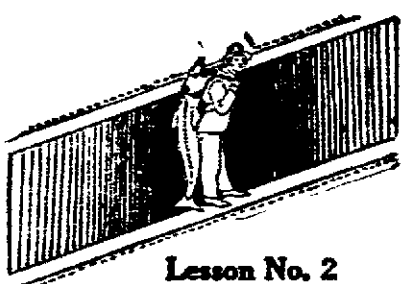

Each school will have two teams one taking the affirmative, and the other the negative side of the question. By a system of local contests, which start in a few days, the school to represent each of the three sections will be chosen.

Winners will be determined by the point system. When three judges are used, in a unanimous decision the winning team receives four points. A two-to-one decision counts three points. A method has been devised that will decide the winner fairly in case two teams have the same number of points.

A silver trophy, which the winning team may hold for a year, the grand prize. This cup passes to the permanent possession of a school which wins three times.

A large banner will be awarded to all high schools which compete in the final. In addition gold medals will be given to all members of the winning teams. Silver and bronze medals will go to the second and third place schools.

Information on the debate subject is being supplied to the high schools by the University Extension division at a low cost.

Real Battle Starts After Divorce Separates Couple

If men and women find the going with each other rather difficult figure that their burdens might be made lighter if they were divorced they are reckoning without experience of our courts. The real fight doesn't begin until after the divorce. Judge Theodore Berg of municipal court has found. And Judge Berg's views find corroboration in Judge Schein of Madison.

Both judges would dispel the common theory that "divorce ends everything."

"The parties just start their real fighting after the divorce has been given," Judge Berg said. "The preliminary disagreements which lead to divorce are only small when compared with what usually follows after the decree is granted."

Payment of alimony and disposition of the children, if there are any, causes most fights after the divorce has been given, opinions of Judge Berg and Schein agree.

"Divorce work wouldn't be so hard on the judges if the battle ended with granting a decree," said Judge Schein. "Give a woman alimony and custody of children and in a good many instances she is back in a few weeks or months asking that the ex-husband be sent to jail for failing to pay alimony."

The northbound through plane will leave Dallas at 7 o'clock in the evening arriving in Chicago at 7 o'clock the next morning.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "all-bran's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MEAL PLANNING, TABLE SERVICE CLASS PLANNED

An evening school class in meal planning and table service will be started at Appleton Vocational school on Feb. 2. The class will meet Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30. The course will consist of six lessons on preparing and serving certain types of luncheons as follows: Luncheon, two or three courses for the average family; 1 o'clock luncheon; buffet luncheon; afternoon tea; after theatre luncheon; and size luncheons.

A limited number of persons will be permitted to enroll in the course. Persons interested in taking the work have been asked to call the vocational school and make their applications before Feb. 1.

Remarriage of the woman also brings a new element into the case, according to Judge Schein. He says it isn't conducive to family harmony to have a former husband enter the home of the succeeding husband to visit with his children. In cases where they usually enter an order for an arrangement whereby the father can visit his children some other place than the home of the succeeding husband.

Judge Schein could see no remedy for the situation. "I suppose its just the general pervasiveness of a man and a woman when they sour on each other to fight to the last ditch, and there seems to be no cure for it," he said.

Judge Berg believes, however, that if husbands and wives will learn to live within their incomes many divorces will be avoided and thus the "after effects" of the divorce will be eliminated also.

THE STORY THIS FAR

The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '80's, when a fight was being waged by the "Boomers" for the opening of the territory to settle.

Chief characters are:

TONY HARRISON, orphaned at 13 when his father was murdered in a poker game;

PAWNEE BILL, adventurer, Indian interpreter and showman;

JOE CRAIG, who takes Tony to the bar K ranch to live;

TITUS MOORE, owner of the Bar K;

RITA MOORE, his little tomboy daughter.

When Tony is 15, Rita and her mother depart for Virginia and the boy learns for the first time how much he cares for the little red-haired, arrogant miss.

Titus Moore, owner of a thoroughbred mare, is challenged to a horse race in Caldwell by CLYDE JONES, owner of a remarkable stallion.

CHAPTER XXIV

"My Gawd!" ejaculated Joe Craig. "Did you hear that, Tony?"

But Tony had heard and understood only too well. He was thinking that the responsibility he had so enthusiastically assumed had grown suddenly to the proportions of a staggering load.

"What," he asked himself, "if Fanny was to lose through some carelessness of mine? It would be bad enough to have her beaten, but I'd hate to be the cause of the colonel's losing five thousand dollars and his mare in the bargain."

"We'll shake on it, then," Jones was saying to Titus Moore. "And now how about a stakeholder?"

"As far as I'm concerned," he was told, "a stakeholder isn't necessary. Your word's good enough for me and most men are satisfied with mine."

Jones started at him a moment, then nodded briefly. "It satisfies me, too."

The news seemed to spread on wings. Within an hour everyone in Caldwell knew that the owners of Black Diamond and Fanny had bet five thousand dollars apiece and their horses as well.

The weekly Caldwell Tribune, issued the morning of the race, carried a stirring editorial by John Blake. Betting on a horse race was gambling, he admitted; nevertheless the editor of the Tribune had a weakness for it.

"If it be treason," he wrote, "make the most of it. As long as horses run there will be wagers and our own judgment, which is often wrong, is backing the Kentucky mare."

The extent to which Titus Moore had plunged on his thoroughbred had caused some surprise among the Bar K men, but Joe Craig had a plausible explanation.

"There's several things to be considered," he pronounced sagely as he "borrowed" a cigar. "First of all, the colonel's a true gambler. You might say he's got the real gambler's instinct, which is to back your judgment to the limit. Take this race, now: the old man's confident of winning; he's got a great little mare and he don't think it runs in her blood to be beaten. And if he can't see how she can lose, why shouldn't he bet that way?"

"As for risking Fanny herself, I think I've got that worked out, too. It would break his heart anyway, if she lost and he was proud some other horse was her master. He'd never feel the same about her; he'd never forget that she failed him in the big test. Understand, I'm not saying he'd turn against her—that's not his way. I'm trying to say that she'd never be the same to him."

"So he's risking her, along with his five thousand. If he wins, it means he was right in his judgment. If he loses—"

Craig broke off and gestured expressively with his hands.

The calmest of all of Fanny's backers was Titus Moore himself: half an hour before the start of the race he stood beside the mare and talked to her in an even voice, while Fanny nuzzled his cheek.

"Tony," he said, turning to the boy, "there's just one bit of advice I want to give you. I have an idea Black Diamond's owner is going to order his boy to let the horse out from the start and keep him going that way to the finish. The stallion is big and strong and he won't tire; there'd be no sense in holding him back. But that's not the way to race Fanny. If she'll do it for you, I want you to match the stallion's pace, keeping about half a length behind him, for the first half-mile. In the last quarter ask her for everything she's got. The mare's got a great heart. Tony, she'll have a sprint left for you."

He stroked Fanny's muzzle affectionately, letting his eyes rove over her trim figure in a final appraisal.

Tony Harrison nodded. Something of the colonel's calmness had communicated itself to him during the last few minutes. Considering the restless, well-nigh sleepless night he spent, he now felt unaccountably quiet of nerve, as though his soothing hands had stroked his temples.

"She's a great little piece of horse-flesh, Tony," Titus Moore went on, still fondling the thoroughbred, "and she's proud—proud of the good, clean blood in her. You don't know how much I'd like to ride her myself."

"I think I do," the boy replied quietly. "You don't know how proud I am myself, being able to ride her. I'll do my best." He sat down, and pulled off his boots, then stood up again and thrust a stockinged foot into a stirrup. "Every pound'll count," he told Titus Moore as he swung into the saddle.

Moore nodded approvingly. The boy had divested himself of every bit of superfluous clothing and sat clad only in trousers, shirt and socks. There was a blast from a bugle and the colonel's fingered to press his rider's hand, then strode calmly, head erect, to a box where Clyde Jones and a party of friends and Joe Craig sat.

Jones wore wide grin. "I feel real sorry for you, Colonel," he called, and Craig frowned. "Save your sympathy," he retorted. "You might need it."

To Titus Moore he added quickly: "It sure will do me good to see that leg of wind lose. It always goes hard with that kind."

His employer said nothing. Chin in hand, he was gazing intently at a spot some fifty yards away where two men were leading the mounted animals up to the starting line. "Black Diamond," Craig informed him in his ear, "is carrying a hundred and forty pounds. Jones said he didn't want to have any advantage in the weights."

Colonel Moore nodded. "That was real white of him."

Somewhere a six-gun barked and two horses shot forward in a swirl of dust. A full-throated cry arose from the seats as long-stifled emotions were released, and the colonel settled himself back, his face an impassive mask.

It was all very brief. True to Titus Moore's prediction, the boy on Black Diamond was trying to show Fanny the stallion's heels all the way. He overhauled the mare in half a dozen jumps, and thereafter Tony clung to him, no more than a length behind.

Craig saw Clyde Jones spring from his seat with a battle-cry of triumph as the stallion sprang into the lead. "He's running away from her," he pealed.

And then Craig saw the broad smile fade as Fanny clung tenaciously to the pace-setting Black Diamond; saw it vanish entirely to be replaced with a frown as, with two-thirds of the race run, Tony Harrison leaned far forward with a word in Fanny's ear and the mare responded with a magnificent spurt. Now she was pulling up on him; daylight closed between them; her head was abreast of his saddle, his neck was even with his; and now she was ahead!

Joe Craig shouted himself hoarse: "Just look at her, Colonel!" he begged. "Just look at her! Oh, what a beauty! What a beauty!"

"She's doing just what I expected of her, Joe," the colonel responded without turning his head. "Tony's run her perfectly."

It was true. Another twenty yards and Fanny would have been overhauled, but the boy had gauged her resources admirably. At the end, Black Diamond was gaining on her in a thunderous finish and Fanny was perceptibly tired, but she flashed over the line half a length ahead.

A slight smile that trembled on his lips was Titus Moore's only evidence of emotion, but Craig with a wild yell of victory turned triumphantly toward the beaten Clyde Jones.

He got the shock of his life, for Jones, his eyes clouded with disappointment and forcing a smile, was coming toward Moore, his hand outstretched in congratulation.

"By God!" he exclaimed. "I'm surprised, but I'm licked, Colonel Moore. I don't think it possible there was another horse in this country as fast as Black Diamond. The mare won because she's a better horse; the stallion's yours and so is this," and he fished out his fat wallet.

Titus Moore got to his feet. A committee was approaching the victorious Fanny to place a wreath of flowers around her neck and another about Tony Harrison's shoulders. The colonel was very happy; he was even close to tears; but outwardly he was imperturbable.

He faced Clyde Jones and clasped his hand. "My friend," he said, "you say what isn't so. It isn't fair to that wonderful horse of yours to say that he was beaten by a better one. He was beaten by a better one at that distance, that is all. You saw for yourself, and it must have done your heart good to see it, that Black Diamond would have won easily at a mile."

Jones nodded. "Yes, I believe he would. I'm right glad to hear you say so."

Titus Moore smiled a little more broadly and rested his hand affectionately on Joe Craig's shoulder. "Mr. Jones," he said, "you have shown yourself to be a fine gentleman and a good sport. The hardest thing in life is to lose gracefully and you've done it."

The other bowed a little and murmured something in deprecation. "I'll take your money," Colonel Moore continued, "but I won't take

A TRAGIC TRUTH

Once upon a time, although this is not a fairy tale, a man afterwards calling himself Trotsky lived in a land ruled by the cruel and unsparing hand of autocratic power, the land familiarly known as that of the czars. He was of more than ordinary intelligence and by dint of energy and effort obtained some instruction, more than ordinary education considering the handicaps.

Deep down within him there surged that age old, restless, everlasting and therefore godly, craving for liberty, the right to think, to express his thoughts, to be free; the right to look up to heaven, to fulfill the destiny of man, to be more than a clod kicked around at another's bidding. When the Russian masters wound the merciless knot around the limbs of trembling serfs, when protest meant prison and prison meant vermin, disease and later, Siberian mines and lingering death, Trotsky spoke out, and for it, went to prison. Upon release he put Russia behind him and in our own land talked grandly, passionately, truly of the rights of man, of liberty of conscience, freedom of action, equality, democracy; and as powerfully did he denounce tyranny in all its manifold forms.

The scenes change as scenes have changed before and will again. In the terrible crucible of war Russia crumbled. Serfs cannot successfully fight battles with freedmen. Ignorance cannot combat intelligence. The power of the czars was swept into the seas, and upon the ruins Trotsky returned and to power himself, more omnipotent than any czar.

And now what of the knot and the deadly prisons and Siberian mines and what of liberty of conscience, freedom of action, equality and democracy? The knot cut but seldom took life; it is succeeded by the bullet. The prisons and Siberian mines are there and more deadly than ever but hold their prisoners a shorter time; they too are supplanted by the bullet. And what of the earnest, heartfelt strivings of man towards the light of liberty? They are choked back into the throats that dare to utter them. Under Trotsky there was inaugurated the cheka, a tribunal of underlings, to pass sentence of death upon anyone who, as Trotsky had done under the czars, spoke out his mind. The land is red with blood and white with terror.

The scenes change again. The inner council divests Trotsky of power in favor of others. He protests. Again he speaks out his mind and for that is arrested. He affects astonishment. Is there no liberty in the land, no freedom of speech? A gloomy stare is his answer. Wherever he goes his footsteps are dogged, his every movement watched. He is doomed. And for what? For voicing an opinion. Shall man not have that much liberty? He had become a revolutionist under czarist rule to obtain liberty. When he came to power he did the stark thing of refusing to others the same liberty he had demanded for himself. Those who succeeded him in power have condemned him for exercising a right for which they both preached and worked.

As he goes into banishment over the Chinese border, deprived of the privilege of living in the land of his birth, he goes without a sigh. He toyed with power a few brief moments without understanding it, as a tot might play with a pistol. His answer to argument, death. His idea of government, snarling force.

So often—how often—has this been the unfortunate history of mankind with those placed in responsible positions, wearing the vestments of the commoner, and parading as a "friend of the people"? The moral is: Unrestrained power in the hands of one person invariably leads to abuse.

SAVING NIAGARA FALLS

Fears have been expressed lately that the country's most famous scenic attraction, Niagara Falls, will soon destroy itself by erosion. It is reassuring to learn from an international board of engineers, which has been studying the subject, that there is no such danger in this generation, at least.

The Horseshoe Falls, the board finds, though wearing back pretty rapidly, is not cutting such a deep and fatal notch as has been supposed. There is reason to believe that from now on, the narrow cut of recent years will broaden out and the crest line will lengthen, making a finer display as the flood pours over.

There will be no deterioration for 100 or possibly 200 years, anyway, the engineers say. And the tendency in that direction may be retarded and the scenic beauty improved by rather simple engineering works tending to draw the water from the middle of the river, above the Horseshoe Falls, and divert it toward the sides. A million or two of dollars would pay for such work, and provide additional water for power purposes without any perceptible loss of beauty.

If this is the case, the work should be undertaken. Beauty has its economic as well as its esthetic value, and is as well worth paying for as mechanical power.

FORECASTING THE WEATHER

Dr. C. F. Marvin, head of the United States Weather bureau, has prepared a warning to business men. He urges them to beware, not of weather but of the goosebone weather prophets who are almost always at their mischievous work of foretelling dire things about the weather as much as a year in advance.

It is an odd thing about these long-range, amateur weather wisecracks that they always foresee the worst. You never catch any of them prophesying a season of unprecedented perfection. Another odd thing is that the weather, at its worst, is never as bad as their direst prognostications. They don't notice that fact; they are too busy with their manly dreadful prophecy.

It seems never to occur to the easily alarmed beings who heed the goosebone prophets, they could do a little weather observing for themselves, check up on facts, and have some in the bargain. A barometer, a thermometer outside a window where it can be looked at readily from within, an interested eye cocked toward clouds and a little serious attention to the direction of winds all accompanied by a brief study of government weather maps and daily weather reports help to make storms interesting.

TELEVISION

Television between London and New York has been definitely established as a result of secret experiments which have been carried on between these two countries for some time, according to L. G. Hutchinson, managing director of the Baird Television Development company. For six weeks the company has been making experiments in London with the view to making more efficient and satisfactory the transmission of sight across the broad expanses of the Atlantic, and now success seems about to crown the efforts.

Said Mr. Hutchinson: "We are at the beginning of the era," he went on. "When the electrical eye will enable people to see distant friends in any part of the world. Even now it is possible to see a man's tongue from a great distance, but at the moment it is impossible to determine the color. Color possibly will enter the field in the future, and one could visualize a physician ordering a tonic for a patient perhaps hundreds of miles away. Now that the question of trans-Atlantic television is entering the field, there should be in the future immense possibilities."

We are, indeed, at the beginning of a new era. Yet a century from now, how primitive may seem the very things before which we now marvel.

An Englishwoman says she doesn't see how the slender women of American manage to dominate their husbands so well. But it always seemed to us a slender lady could weep just as much and as often as a fat one.

The weather in Houston, Texas, isn't so balmy in June, and neither is Kansas City's, but the delegates of both parties will not fall down in this respect.

The only flaw in the Remus proceedings at Cincinnati will be corrected, doubtless, when some one starts a fund to erect a statue of him.

Women are taking men's places in the world, all right, but we haven't heard any stories yet about the traveling saleswoman.

The young man who stole $35,000 from his firm to get an education and got caught has made a good start anyway.

The city of London is seeking a slogan. We suggest "Now you see it; now you don't."

LADY, EH?

It does seem as though the family man, not to call him a settled man, is suspiciously prone to yield to that most amiable, to swear off smoking that sweeps through the country every year just about a week after Christmas. It takes something potent, may, acrid, to so deeply move a man to consider, in the week after Christmas whether he is not impairing his health or lowering his efficiency in his zeal to encourage the great alfalfa and cabbage industries. As a general rule, I can assure him, he probably is not. We owe thanks to the psychological genius that wraps certain commodities in pleasing packages for the holiday trade, for besides moving the goods this little device tends to restrain the great American consumer from making a hog of himself.

Before we start calling each other unpleasant names I really should confess that I am prejudiced for I maintain a large herd of pedigreed pipes and caches of my favorite food all over the place. So far as effects go, it makes no difference whether one absorbs tobacco through pipe, cigar, cigarette or snuff, though of all methods of administration that by means of the pipe seem easiest on waistcoats, bosoms and lans. Then if one keeps forty odd pipes in commission and indulges temperately, he is assured fresh delight at each seance and no vomit.

Certain artists and artisans do combine tobacco with work of a sort. Nevertheless we know absolutely that the immediate effect of tobacco in every instance is a reduction of mental efficiency and of physical efficiency, skill, inventive capacity, capacity to think, plan, concentrate, persevere. Let no one deceive himself about that. Pipe dreams are only false inspirations. If one can do acceptable work when under the inhibiting influence of tobacco, he ought to do much better work when all of his faculties are free.

Whoever nicknamed tobacco "Lady Nicotine" used the title in a very loose sense. The cultivation of a lady's companionship surely would not render a man callous and indifferent to the sensibilities of those about him. Too many devotees of this questionable lady discard the rudiments of courtesy if they have ever learned the rudiments—and inflect that second hand fumigation on all and sundry whether it is agreeable or not.

A smoking man may be a No. 1 at his trade just as long as he keeps his work and his diversion separated. I have studied this question for years, and while I encounter occasionally a skilled mechanic or artisan who seems to be able to do his work and keep a pipe, cigar or cigarette going at the same time, the best men in any line generally reserve their smoking, if they smoke, for enjoyment after the work is done.

Temperance in this, as in everything else, is in itself a source of pleasure. The man who smokes more or less all day never derives as much pleasure from it as does the man who is man enough to struggle through the day's job without this narcotic and reserves his smoking for his leisure.

Every doctor is a law unto himself in regard to the pathological effects of tobacco. My own notion is that tobacco in any form or amount is invariably injurious to children (persons under 21 years of age), and in excess it may cause amblyopia (blindness), heart disease, pneumonia, arteriosclerosis, and, believe me, however that the temperate use of tobacco by adults is not likely to produce any grave consequences. Temperate use means perhaps two or three smokes after the day's work is done.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

By Dr. J. H. Laid

I am an old reader of your column and have often thought I should answer the question about twins' fertility. I am a twin girl. My twin sister lives in —. We are 51 years old. I have borne seven children, three boys and four girls. My twin sister has borne four boys, the second and third being twins. So you know you are right when you ridicule the popular myth about twin sisters being sterile. (Mrs. M. J. C.)

In a recent item in your column you referred to "Twins and Their Troubles." I am a twin. In my teens I married a twin, and a daughter was born to us. I am now married a second time to a man who was not a twin and we have been blessed with two healthy sons. My twin sister lives in — and she has three of the finest boys in her little town. (Mrs. H. G.)

Answer to a son, dear reader, if you contemplate marrying a twin, don't let the old wives stop you. A few years ago I gathered quite a collection of testimony from twin sisters, twin brothers, and twin brothers and sisters, all in contravention of the superstition about the sterility of twins.

Some one posted your corn cure highly. Please publish the recipe again. Lots of new readers know no better, yet, than to have corns. (F. M.)

Answer—Paint the corn or wart once a day with a solution of 20 grains of salicylic acid in half an ounce of flexible collodion. After a week or 10 days it will come away.

DOC DISAGREES

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

"SOFT SPOT"

In commenting on a novel we sometimes say that it has "soft spots." It is easier to give examples than to define what the phrase means. For a "soft spot" in a realistic novel might not be a "soft spot" in a romantic story or the other way round. And when a novel is fundamentally can hardly be said to have "soft spots," even though it perpetuates horrors of ignorance and poor taste. "Soft spots" in fiction are confined to books that are in the main sound.

The most painful example of a "soft spot" I have come across in many months is found in St. John Ervine's fine new novel, "The Wayward Man." It is so small a "soft spot" that it may seem capricious to call attention to it. It covers only 16 pages out of a total of 439, namely from page 210 to 225. If "The Wayward Man" were anything less than a very fine novel it would be ridiculous to comment on it. But it illustrates the fact that even the very finest writers can have moments of ineptitude that set the teeth on edge of the readers who are their greatest admirers.

"The Wayward Man" is the story of a young fellow who runs away from his home in Ireland and wanders all over the globe as a common sailor. In the course of his wanderings he and his friend Charlie decide to bum their way from New York to San Francisco. On page 210 they fall in with a hobo known as Lop Ear and they travel in his company in a freight car for many miles.

It is at this point that St. John Ervine goes "soft." Until this point he has been describing a life that he evidently knows intimately. The chapters devoted to a small shop-keeping family in Ireland are beautiful and they carry conviction in every smallest detail. The author spent his boyhood in just such surroundings and his debt to early impressions is unmistakable. The scenes in sailing ships also give the impression of complete authenticity. Where Ervine obtained the information I do not know and I don't know whether or not all of it is correct. All I know is that put to the test of Conrad or any other writer of the sea it stands up.

It is the feeling that it must be authentic. Then enter Lop Ear and a number of American policemen, justice court officials, turkeys in a county jail and the whole atmosphere is changed. You get the feeling that St. John Ervine hasn't the slightest idea of what he is talking about. He is imagining an American hobo at a distance of several thousand miles and the effect is grotesque. To any newspaper man or any one else who has had opportunity to come into contact with red American hobos Ervine's portrait is so funny that it is impossible not to laugh at the author even when throughout the rest of the book he is followed with unaltered respect. Lop Ear is a piece of pastiche, a large distance conception of an American hobo by one who seems never to have been within shouting distance of the real thing. It shows what happens when even a fine writer sets out to describe something he knows nothing about. Lop Ear, throughout the scenes in which he appears, gives the effect of a comic opera figure, fantastic and grotesque in the midst of a realistic book. He is the book's "soft spot."

It is as if the contagion of the decay that is Lop Ear communicates itself to everything the author touches. If Lop Ear is present, Robert and Charlie and Lop Ear are arrested as vagrants in what is supposed to be a typical American town. The police-

A LAWRENTIAN ANSWERS

Editor of Post-Crescent: Will you please print the following in your "People's Forum" sometime soon? Bitterness emanating from a man who, to use his own terminology, has been "fired by the authority of Lawrence College" should be taken with a grain of salt, is not entirely disregarded. However, when Mr. Catlin attempts to criticize the administration of the college unjustly, and unduly, it is time something was done about it. The article in which Mr. Catlin wrote for the issue of January 24, is entirely uncalled for, and foolish. To answer all of Mr. Catlin's arguments (illogical as they may be) would men, the justice, the jail officials, all display an attitude and speak a language that sounds fantastic to anyone who has had personal contact with such officials. Even if St. John Ervine had never seen an American cop or justice of the peace in action or smoked a cigar with a deputy sheriff, he might have obtained better information for his scene from more reading. Jack London of Harry Kemp or any one else of a dozen other writers who have described hobo life in America would have been a more authentic guide than his own imagination.

As soon as Lop Ear is eliminated from the picture the author turns a new leaf. It is all the more startling an example of a "soft spot" because it is the only one in the book.

be a waste of time, and so I shall confine myself to one or two salient points.

In the first place, the building of the new gymnasium across the river is not the "pet scheme of the president," but the product of a great deal of thinking and hard work on the part of the whole administration. As we Lawrentians know, the president does "permit interference" and welcomes any criticism of any issue connected with Lawrence college, or the student body. The president is anything but the dictatorial tyrant which our former coach makes him out to be.

When the president asked that "any business man, faculty member, or student consider this plan (of having the new gymnasium across the river) with a deep sense of responsibility," he simply wanted to impress upon the afore mentioned people the need of rational, unprejudiced, clear thinking in regard to this problem. There was no hint "that the businessmen of Appleton, and others are liable to deal with such a plan frivolously," as Mr. Catlin states.

I think that Mr. Catlin made a grave error when he stated that the townspeople wouldn't patronize our basketball games if the gymnasium were across the river. I feel confident that the Appletonians are back of the college, back of the student body, and back of our teams, and will attend the games and other athletic events, whether held in the Armory or in the Fourth ward. It seems to me that a slur was made on the loyalty of the townspeople, when it was intimated that their loyalty extended only as far as the corner of Drew street and College-ave.

If Mr. Catlin can, and will advance a better plan of locating the new gymnasium, the fraternity houses, and the men's dormitory that is proposed by

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Bachelor hotels prosper in Manhattan and, I am told, there are tens of thousands of men over 40 engaged in the serious business of dodging matrimony. A certain chain of hotels now has five "bachelor" establishments, two of which are veritable skyscrapers. Of evenings the lobbies and dining rooms of these places take on the air of quiet gentlemen's clubs. Pipes come out, newspapers rattle and the quiet sanctuaries of celibacy is enjoyed, far from the distracting temptations of the silk stocking zone.

If any of these tens of thousands are lonely they do not indicate it. Most of them seem intent upon keeping intact their unwedded bliss. The only women they see about the buildings are those aged and cronish mop women who splash through the hallways.

One notices but little interchange of conversation among them. They glance over the tops of their papers and bow a polite greeting to a familiar fellow recluse. Now and then some younger bachelor stops a friend to relate a tale of adventure outside the cloister walls and receives frowns from the oldsters.

Young newcomers to Manhattan, made a bit timid by tales of the "wild city" that reached their ears in the outcountry, almost invariably go to one of these places—just as girls go to Y. W. C. A.'s or to the Martha Washington or one of several other places where the "women only" sign hangs out. There is a tale of a man who once gained entrance to the upper floors of the Martha Washington in the disguise of a laundry collector. And they still giggle over it in the lobbies.

Speaking of New York hotels—The average visitor to Manhattan generally expresses surprise at the lack of splendor to be found in the lobbies of hostleries whose names are by-words around the nation. Almost any city in the outcountry, almost invariably go to one of these places—just as girls go to Y. W. C. A.'s or to the Martha Washington or one of several other places where the "women only" sign hangs out. There is a tale of a man who once gained entrance to the upper floors of the Martha Washington in the disguise of a laundry collector. And they still giggle over it in the lobbies.

Whereas the Ritz, in Manhattan, despite its implication of luxury, has little more than a couple of lane-like passageways. The Waldorf-Astoria, with its historic background, has a quiet simplicity about its decoration, and suggests other days and other times. The McAlpin and Pennsylvania have little more than the usual lobby bustle. The Astor might be any commercial hotel, if one accepted first impressions. The Algonquin is decorated chiefly by its notables. The Plaza, despite its ornate exterior, has little of glitter to greet the casual eye that peeps behind the lobby doorway. And so it goes.

They are telling this one on Broadway.

Texas Guinan, "queen of the night life," having done her few hours in a cell for various curfew offenses and the like, heard the other night of the raid on Helen Morgan's club. The reports said that Miss Morgan was being gallivanted off to jail.

"Well," sighed Texas. "I hope they don't give her my room."

And they also tell of the chorine who has done on her wall that phrase of the grand old motto: "Early to bed and early to rise—and how the devil will you ever get an engagement?"

the present plan, I am sure that the administration will meet him with open arms, ready—yes eager, to adopt his plan. But since no such plan has been advanced as yet, and it is extremely doubtful that there is such a plan, I would suggest that we all, townspeople, students and faculty stop criticizing, and put our shoulders to the wheel to push this proposal through to a finish which will be a credit to Wisconsin, Appleton, and to Lawrence.

A Lawrentian."

New York—Business was bad. Herman Schwartz, junk dealer, could visualize all sorts of difficulties—bankruptcy, insolvency court, the sheriff, so he decided to provide business where there wasn't any. He proceeded to smash up soil piping owned by the Brooklyn Construction Co. whose president Max Epstein, placed a valuation of $1000 on Schwartz's attempt to make business better.

Woman Of Limited Means May Be Well Dressed With Three Costumes And Accessories Wisely Chosen

BY HENRI BENDEL

NEW YORK. I have heard women say that if one had all the money in the world there would be no clothes problems.

This really is not true. The choice of clothes might be easier with unlimited means. But in the last analysis it is good taste that decides clothes problems and not money.

Of course the woman with only a given amount to spend for her frocks and that not large, does have restrictions put upon her that the richer woman never feels. But to the woman with limited means who maintains a smart appearance goes much more credit and satisfaction than to the one who can afford anything.

I often have women ask me to help them plan a season's wardrobe that must be built around a few outfits—say three. I maintain a woman can keep up a smart appearance on this number, if they are chosen properly.

BASIC RULES OF CHOICE

But, certain rules must be followed in choosing the three. They must never be startling in color, they must be of somewhat conservative cut, and they can never afford to be fragile but as practical as possible. It is a good plan to choose at least one costume that can lead a double or even triple life, given different accessories to change its character.

I show today two of the three types of costumes I would suggest to a woman of limited means. These are the two that allow more freedom of choice and are hardest of pick.

The first of the three costumes must be, of course, a daytime street costume that will serve for luncheon as well, for matinee wear and for bridge or any occasion before five in the afternoon.

THE OTHER TWO

Second comes an afternoon, dressy ensemble. Third the evening gown. This last I omit from the illustrations for there can be little choice here. I should say if one can have only a single evening gown it must be black and that season it would be lace, undoubtedly.

The street costume, for springtime, is the most important in the wardrobe. I have selected the type shown from among nonchalant sports models, strictly tailored ensembles and elaborate and intricate combinations of capes and dresses or two-piece ensembles, because it is a winning creation both in line and fabric, because it is somewhat conservative and because it is so smart it will ever arouse admiration but is not so easily remembered as one of more unique cut.

It is a tweed suit, a hand-woven French tweed, in tone with fleckings of coffee brown, and a tiny dash of red that gives it a live cast. It is a wrap-around skirt and a tricky little collarless, cuffless but belted coat.

File belting trims it, binding all the edges and forming a wide banding around the neckline and fashioning sham pockets. A brown suede belt, matching exactly in color, and brown suede purse and gloves bring out the color of this trimming.

Under this suit is worn one of the angora knitted blouses with a new neckline and matching cuffs. This is a lighter tan in tone, with dark bandings. A fox scarf and one of the smart French hats of chiquette straw trimmed with a long graceful straw feather is also of dark brown.

COLORS ARE CHANGEABLE

Of course, one should be of brown antelope and hosiery matching.

Change the blouse of this creation—wear a soft bisque satin one and lighter hosiery, gloves and purse and perhaps a jaunty colored scarf instead of the fur and you have a totally different effect. If one wears grey better than brown or blue better than either, I should advise a mixture of those colors instead of brown and tan. But this type of little suit and these accessories cannot be surpassed for jaunty chic.

For afternoon—a bottle-green flat crepe and chiffon ensemble, the crepe forming the draped skirt and three quarters flaring coat and the chiffon the beautifully tucked blouse with its unique flowing sleeves form the tight upper portion.

WITH AND WITHOUT THE COAT With the coat, one has the ideal afternoon party frock, reception gown and so on. Without it, the type of hostess frock that the well-dressed woman likes to have to wear when particular guests arrive.

I chose green for the vogue this year. Catawba or a rich blue would be equally good. But this ensemble should have some color that one does not feature in the other frocks. Each of the three should stand on its own merits and have its own accessories. That way one avoids the feeling of wearing exactly the same thing each time.

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

With desperate hurry Faith jerked open the bathroom window and flung the three bottles which had contained poison as far as her strength permitted. Fortunately the window overlooked a side street that was deserted for the moment. She listened for the reassuring sound of the crashing of glass against pavement five stories below, then pulled down the outside door, which was as trembling under a deafening barrage of blows.

"Did you knock?" she asked with ludicrous dignity, as her fever-hazed eyes tried to focus on the faces of the men who were staring at her in amazement.

There were three of them—the clerk who had assigned her the room, an old man with ruddy cheeks and a yellowish-white Vandike beard, and a stocky, middle-aged man in a checked suit with a heavy gold chain across his prominent stomach.

"Sorry to disturb you, Miss Pringle," the clerk began apologetically. "The manager here was afraid you didn't know something wrong when you didn't answer the phone or the door. This is Mr. Barnes, the manager."

"Everything all right, Miss Pringle." The manager showed uninvited into the room and looked curiously about. "I see you were just taking a nap. A sound sleeper, I suppose?" His darting gray eyes had taken in the rumpled appearance of Faith's bed, but when they came to rest upon her again they were narrowed with suspicion. "Room comfortable?" he went on unctuously, but without waiting for her to answer he darted to the closet, threw open the door and satisfied himself no man was lurking within.

Faith heard his words faintly, as if they came from a great distance. "She's fainting! Here, Barnes, help me get her into bed! A pretty sick girl, if I know my business. Easy, there. Keep her head lowered. Ring for an ice bag, Hilton. She's burning up with fever."

"The old man with the beard is a doctor," Faith thought drowsily, as they carried her clumsily to the bed. "I'll have to tell him I have not fainted. I'm just—just—"

She moaned with pain as someone straightened her body upon the bed. Why were they hammering on her flesh? It was sore enough already—"Miss Pringle! Can you hear me, Miss Pringle?"

She opened her great, fever-dazed eyes and stared blankly at the doctor who was bending over her. "Yes," she nodded. Then she smiled, that queer, cunning smile that had come to her with her tragedy. They didn't know at all who she was. They really thought she was Miss Stella Pringle, of Chicago.

"Have you swallowed any poison, Miss Pringle?" the doctor's gruff but kindly voice insisted.

"No, no!" Faith thought she was shaking her head violently on the pillow but it was hardly a gesture of negation that accompanied her hoarsely whispered denial.

"I'm afraid you have a very sick girl on your hands," she heard the doctor say to the hotel manager.

NEXT: Faith plans to escape. (Copyright, 1928, NEA Service, Inc.)

THIN GARMENTS WORN BY WOMEN KEEP THEM WARM

Paris. (AP)—Lightly clad women really are better protected from cold than men, says Doctor Leon Bernard, professor of the Medical Faculty of Paris.

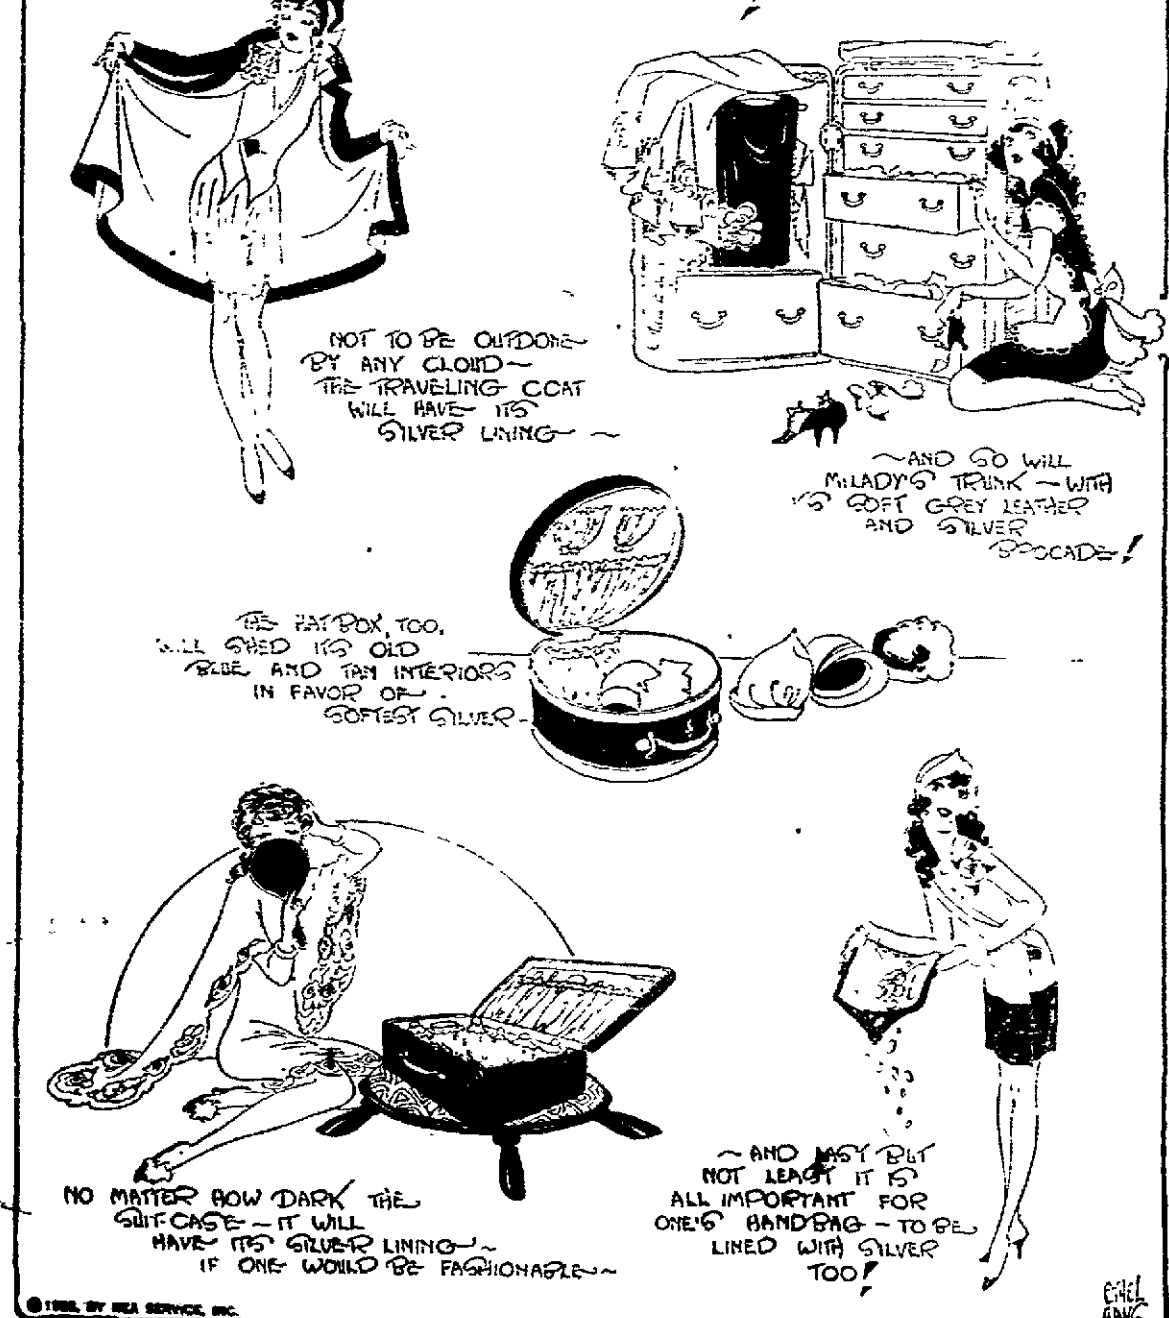

"Their clothes may seem thin," he explains, "but the goods—silk, satin, linen and fine, thin wool—are more closely woven and insulate the body better."

Also, he remarks, women usually wear heavy garments or furs apparently for style, but nevertheless keeping them warm.

GOLDEN RULE IN REAL ESTATE

BY OLIVE ROBERTS EASTON

A MAN who has made a great success of his business explained a code of ethics that are unique enough to pass along as news. They may interest others as they interested me.

"There were four of us boys at home," he said, "and we've all made good in the business world. Not millionaires, but each of us has a good income, money saved, good health and a good set of nerves, although none of us is under fifty. "Mother had the golden rule over the door of the parlor and another one framed beside the bench where we used to wash. She made us live up to it, too. And often we'd have long talks about what we'd do when we were men."

"Whatever you do, boys, I want you to more than work for your employer," she would say. "I want you to work for the people. The people. Don't forget the people."

"Sounded pretty puzzling but we found out what she meant later on, and it's worked like a charm. Take me for instance, I'm in the real estate business. Now I get my commission on sales and rents. My money depends on what the property owner makes. A lot of real estate men, I never see the other side, the renters, or buyers. They're trying to do all the favors the other way—for the man who pays him."

"But I took Mother's idea of trying to take the side of the people who were renting or were going to buy a house. Every time I rented or sold a house I pretended those people were my own folks. I nearly always took the customer's side unless he was unreasonable. I went right up from the first, for I've found the other fellows all began to look at things the way I did."

It struck me as the best booster stuff I'd heard in a blue moon. Why not page Mr. Rabbit?

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinies sang and worked away. To build a mud house was like play. Wee Scouty said, "Just see my hands. They're black as black can be. But I know what we all can do. We'll wash up clean when we are through. And for a towel we'll use big leaves from off a nearby tree."

And then the slim man jumped and cried, "Say, I need food in my inside. We'd better rest and wash up now. Then I'll prepare a meal." "Oh, finer!" cried Carpy. "Some on, bunch. Our friend suggests a dandy lunch. He says that he's hungry. That's exactly how I feel."

They found a stream not far away, and shortly Carpy shouted, "Hey! Quit splashing water on me. I will catch my death of cold." Then Carpy snapped, "Don't be so cross at us. I'm really at a loss to know why you find fault so much and always have to scold."

They finished washing very soon, and then the slim man said, "It's noon, and just the proper time to eat. I have a treat in store. Now watch this clever trick I'll do." He brought a basket into view, and said, "How's that? It's full of food. Just what we're craving for."

The Tinies ate like all lads would, and found the food was very good. And then they all returned to work upon their barn again. It wasn't long till it was done, and Scouty said, "Well that was fun. I guess it does a person good to labor now and then."

"And now," the funny slim man cried, "We'll drive the animals all inside. And then we all can rest. It's been very tiresome day."

But when the whole bunch looked around, the animals could not be found. While everyone was busy they had turned and run away.

(The Tinies meet a woodsman in the next story.)

New London—"If an aeroplane could take you now and deposit you tomorrow in the part of Oregon I know best, the Willamette valley, you would see but little difference in the appearance of the country." This was the comment of Louis Zeimer, of the Oregon State Dairy and Food commission of Portland, who is visiting his sister, Miss Amelia Zeimer, Smith-st. Mr. Zeimer arrived here before Christmas and after spending a month with various relatives will return to the west next week.

Leaving New London for the west about fifteen years ago, he secured his present position in Portland because of his knowledge of dairy products and their manufacture. He was at the time a student at the agricultural college at the University of Wisconsin. He is in Portland during the summer time, engaged in inspection of dairy products and the manufacturing plants, such as privately owned dairies, ice cream plants, farms and condensaries, and during the winter months usually teaches a short course at the University of Oregon, at Corvallis.

An interesting point was brought out regarding Oregon's standards of food and dairy legislation when Mr. Zeimer stated that Oregon and Wisconsin have their points of consolidation find it to their advantage to pattern their laws after one another.

The states have nearly the same standards and when a new ruling is introduced in either state, it is immediately sent to the other.

"There is much similarity between the two states in a variety of ways," stated the visitor, "the rolling farm lands, and the people themselves, many of whom originally came from this state. There is a heartiness among the old settlers which is fine to encounter. No matter when one arrives he is invited to remain for a meal and if he arrives in mid-afternoon he is invited for the night.

There is a democracy among the people there. They are well to do, nearly always, yet the spirit of independence is strong. There is a scarcity of servants, for nearly all women do their own work. Our girls and boys are about on the par with their eastern cousins. The girls show the same lack of restraint and independence but they are nice girls just the same. There has been a ruling that made rouge and lipstick taboo. But we notice that both have their points of popularity."

"Speaking of the prohibition law, we enforce our laws out there, and that is where we have it all over Wisconsin. A man discovered with a still in his basement is almost an impossibility in Oregon, for his laws are more strict and have been for a long time but if the still were found there would be no appeal from one court to another until the case was worn out and forgotten."

Mr. Zeimer points out many interesting and beautiful views of Oregon country—the famous Mt. Hood, Crater Lake, and the Columbia highway said to be one of the most beautiful in the world. He speaks highly of the fruit growing country in which the famous Oregon cherries, apples and pears are grown. English walnuts are among the most grown nut trees. His talk regarding fruit exports to England brings up the subject of spraying of fruits and vegetables, in which he mentions that England refuses to accept apples which show more than one hundredth part of an ounce of spraying oil remaining on a pound of apples. He also introduces Mr. Appleby, a typical western figure, said to have lived so much among Indians that his appearance and manner is quite like a tribesman, and who has disagreed forcefully with the fictional version of Emerson Hough, whose "Covered Wagon," made a tremendous appeal to American people. Appleby is stated to have been a young lad who was a member of the party whose adventures on the way to the Willamette valley, Hough describes.

NO INDIVIDUALITY IN
"HAND-ME-DOWN" TIES

London—(AP)—Evening ties must have a slant of their own. That's the latest among the young bloods of Mayfair. Whether the idea originated with the Prince of Wales or Lord Beatty, each of whom has his own tilt for his hat, has not been decided, but any way the Beau Brummels of today are in accord that ties must have "swagger," and lots of it.

As a consequence hand-me-down bow ties have been barred absolutely from polite society.

The cute little butterfly or bat wings, in white for wear with a swallow tail, or in black for the Tuxedo, are the thing of the moment, but the stiff, precise bows, factory made and held in place by an elastic band, are simply "unheard of" in Piccadilly circles where the bow ties abound after 6 p. m.

In the first place, say the bloods, the hand-me-down, while convenient, lack all vestige of individuality. The idea now is that each little tie, black or white, must have its own little twist to stay put all evening.

"BRASS KNUCKLES"

Monte Blue has ingratiated himself with millions of motion picture-goers in roles that range from prize fighter to Parson physician, from roughneck to sophisticate, and in "Brass Knuckles" at Fischers Appleton Theatre today he again wins sympathy and buzzes for as he not wrongfully imprisoned, as he is not able to dispute his hardiness in the main art, and does he not make a home for the motherless waif, whose father has entrusted him with her care as the two wait at the prison gates?

The waif is played by no other than Betty Bronson, the little lady James M. Barrie selected as best fitted to portray his whimsical creations, on the screen. The story of "Brass Knuckles" is indeed not far from Betty's "June Curry," who goes her tumult way from the orphanage and learns to make a humble room home-like for the busy, young ironmaker who fathers her.

Other parts are played with fine understanding. William Russell is a "Brass Knuckles" Lamont, to throw a punch into any last form date foe. He it is, who harbors a wrong done, so he thinks, by Zee, plots to put the spot on his track again and part him from the child he is fostering. The course of true love leads rocky through battles and tears to a culmination of humorous and heart-warming beauty. June has grown to womanhood and her mother charges from her brother love to lover.

Others in the cast are George Stone, who plays the part of the hard-boiled doer, "Velvet," Paul Panzer who does Sergeant "Peters" and Jack Curtis who is one "Murphy." There is an army of supernumeraries, for scenes in prison, courts and streets. The heart of a great story throbs through this rugged story of love and courage. Lloyd Bacon's direction is remarkable for its truth, and the photography is superb. Here is a story of thrilling love. Don't miss it.

"THE NOOSE"
A cross section of life—stark and unadorned—is the description that has been given to First National's "The Noose" starring Richard Barthelmess at the Elite Theatre today, Saturday and Sunday.

It is the story of an unfortunate boy thrown in among bad companions and denied the love of a father and mother who becomes a run, runner and gangster. The highly dramatic result of his discovery of his own identity and the revenge he takes upon the man who wronged his mother is presented in a convincing manner. Barthelmess' role is one of the finest he has ever had, and he makes Nickie Elkins a flesh-and-blood person and not a mythical screen character. "The Noose" is from Willard Mack's sensational stage play of that name. It was directed by John Francis Dillon and produced for First National Pictures by Henry Hobart.

An exceptional cast surrounds the star. Lana Basquette, former "Follies" dancer, is cast as Dot, the cabaret girl, who sticks by the boy. Thelma Todd is the blonde society queen, and Alice Joyce plays the governor's wife.

Montagu Love is the "heavy," and the cast includes Ed Brady, Fred Warren, Jay Eaton, Robert E. O'Connor and Robert T. Hames.

WIN SCOUTING'S HIGHEST HONOR

Arthur Hahnen and Dale Clough to be made Eagle scouts at ceremony in Castle hall there Saturday night.

Two boy scout members of Troop 3, can win the honor, the remaining one of the quality badges being optional studies.

Eagle Scout Hahnen has won merit badges in the twelve compulsory studies. First aid, life saving, personal health, public health, physical development, pioneering, cooking, camping, canoeing, bird study, pathfinding and swimming. He has 15 other badges in, partly first, trophies, firemanship, wood carving, handicraft, leatherworking, carpentry, first aid to animals, safety first, freemanship, electricity, cycling, poultry keeping, darning, craftwork in leather, wood and cement, handicraft, leatherworking, masonry, bird study, horsemanship and wood carving.

Not only have the Eagle scouts of Troop 3 won the honor conferred upon them but they also have taken active part in leadership work. The boys have taken over practically all of the leadership activities in the troop working under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster A. J. DuBois, Jr.

To become an Eagle scout a boy must have completed his first degree, second degree and tenderfoot work. If he is ambitious he then will turn his attention to winning merit badges most of which hinge on vocational guidance activity. Twelve activity badges are compulsory before a boy can win the honor.

THURSDAY GAME
LAWRENCE 19, BELOIT 16
SATURDAY GAME
LAWRENCE AT KNOX

In a slow, ragged game in which both teams passed poorly and relied on long shots most of the evening, Coach A. C. Denny's Lawrence college sophomores advanced from sixth to fourth place in the Midwest conference 1928 basketball race, trimming Beloit college Thursday afternoon at Beloit, 19-16.

The Vikings battle Knox, a team which Beloit beat earlier in the year, at Galesburg, Ill., Saturday afternoon and a win will place the local collegians in third place in the loop, ahead of the crack Cornell team, 1927 champs. Cornell and Beloit, the two strongest teams of the loop, with Monmouth, were the only conference foes to trim the Blues green team so far this year.

In beating Beloit the Blues showed the effects of the "little red necktie" which Denny has been using to tab the worst free thrower on the squad each night of practice this week. The Vikings were outscored in field goals 10 to 5, but counted 9 of 14 free throws while Beloit got 2 of 8. Beloit took a five-point lead soon after the start of the game but Lawrence rallied and led 11-10 at the half. Thereafter the Blue was never headed.

"Lefty Zeke" Remmel, always a good floor man and usually a good shot, finally recovered his basket eye after not being able to locate the hoop well at all this season. He dropped four baskets and four free throws for 12 Blue points. Jerry Slavic, playing his usual steady game in spite of his injury, added a basket and two free throws. Rasmussen had two free throws and Pierce added the other point with a free try.

Bothno and Carlson, forwards, led the Beloit attack with two ringers each and the former had a free try. Schneiberg, lanky pivot man, also played a nice game, though covered so well by the Blues that he was unable to do his usual heavy scoring. He showed a driving floor game. A fine defensive game, the like of which has not been seen in a Beloit court this year, also featured the Blue play. The Vikings showed a decided improvement over their last start against Cornell, and a much better and more experienced team will face Knox on Saturday night. The Blue defense worked smoothly with Slavic at center, Remmel and Rasmussen at the two forwards and Pierce and Voock at the guard positions. Beloit was able to break through for very few pot shots. On offense, the Vikings did not look so strong, several plays, which Coach Denny had drilled the men on for over a week, were able to fool the opposition on only one or two occasions.

The game opened slowly, both teams being on the defensive, and it was not until after a few minutes of play that the Vikings counted on Remmel's long counter. For the first half, both teams played a wonderful floor game and at no time was one squad ahead of the other by more than three points.

GERMAN CHAMP, HAHN MAY MEET IN CHICAGO

Chicago—(P)—Dr. Otto Peltzer, the German half-mile champion, hopes Friday to arrange with the Illinois Athletic club officials the contract that will prevail for his several match races with Lloyd Hahn of Boston at the club's indoor track and field games Feb. 10.

The club officials said both men have entered for a match, the distance and conditions remaining to be adjusted. Peltzer has asked the match to be 1,000 yards and that distance is thought to be agreeable to Hahn.

Although the Peltzer-Hahn race will feature the meet, the two-mile university relay is attracting considerable interest. Notre Dame, Michigan, Iowa, Ames, and Northwestern have entered, and more entries are expected before the list closes Feb. 3.

ARMY, NEBRASKA MAY CLASH ON 1928 GRID

Chicago—(P)—Although reports were current Friday that the University of Nebraska and the Army football eleven will meet on the athletic field Gridiron next fall, the athletic officials at Lincoln, Neb., refused to verify the reports.

The game, if played, would probably be on Nov. 2 as that is the date which the Army will have open following collapse of the annual schedule with the Navy.

FRIDAY GAMES
APPLETON VS. MANITOWOC
Oshkosh vs. W. Green Bay
Sheboygan vs. E. Green Bay

With their ancient rival, Manitowoc high school, booked as the favorite for a victory, Coach Joseph Shields, Appleton high cagers will take the courts at the Ship city Friday evening determined to win the battle if fight can come for anything in the final score. Manitowoc's fast-stepping six footers, ready to build like Neenah which already has beaten Appleton twice this year, on the home floor is considered almost invincible this year. In fact, many sport experts predict that the Ships will win every game at home this year.

The battle will have plenty to do with first place in the Valley loop, as Appleton must win to remain in a tie for the top. An Appleton loss will give first place to the winners of the Oshkosh-West Green Bay game, and will shove the Orange anywhere from third to fifth place, depending on the outcome of the other two loop battles.

Coach Shields plans to start Benny Ratoff, high point man of the team, at center, the new converted forward guard, and Capt. Strutz and Johnson at guards, and Berg, a former guard, and Bowly or Gochbauer, at forwards. Bowly, usually the best shot on the team, has been far off the last few weeks, while Gochbauer, who replaced him has played a steady, fighting game. When Bowly's eye returns to its old form the Orange will upset many a leader and will have a hand in the championship decision.

The team showed plenty of teamwork and fine offensive play against Marinette, but after driving the ball under the hoop after time, it missed one shot after another. The team work part being the same at Manitowoc, should the Orangemen finally come through with half the shots taken, things will be interesting for the Ships. The Orange also will have to show better form on free throws which have won three conference games for various teams this year, to hope for a win, getting at least a 50-50 break. The local defense showed well the first half against Marinette, but cracked in the final period and allowed the game in spite of a large first-half lead. However, Strutz had been removed from the game at the time of the biggest Marinette rally.

Manitowoc will have the man who is ranked as leading contender for Valley conference center honors this year at the jumping post in Gorychka, a man who is in third place in scoring honors of the loop, though playing less game than his foes. The three-year vet, Capt. Wilda, will run the team from guard, with Bray as a mate. As forwards the Ships will have Kupke, another six footer, and a neat shot from all angles at the home floor and Newburg.

BAMBINO FAILS TO HOLD TO TRAINING AS HE DID IN 1926

Experts, However, Pick King of Swat to Do as Much Damage as Ever

New York—(P)—Babe Ruth seems to have grown a bit careless about adhering to his program of conditioning for the coming season.

In spite of the glowing reports of the Yankee slugger's condition, his arduous for golf and duck-hunting, it is alleged that the big fellow has neglected the gymnasium training that he credited with putting him back on his feet after his famous 1925 collapse, and also with putting him in shape for his record 1927 home-run campaign.

Several weeks ago the Babe proclaimed to all within hearing that he was about to knuckle down to hard work for some weeks, taking systematic exercise designed to send him south in top trim.

But the Bambino hasn't knuckled down to any rigorous work of the sort he stuck to last winter. He pooh-poohs any suggestion that he needs much of it or that he is growing careless but basketball alley along with the Yankees signed Babe to a three-year contract. With Ruth assured his $70,000 for 1928 and 1929, the Yankees see the possibility of the big hitter losing some of his incentive and yielding to a desire to take life and his baseball easier.

On the other hand those familiar with Ruth's impulses realize there is nothing dearer to the Babe's heart than his home runs. No youth seeing his first big league game got any more thrill out of it than Ruth did when he slipped No. 60 out of the park last year against the Red Sox.

"Boy, I got a kick out of that," said the Babe.

So it is likely that no great alarm need be stirred up now over what Ruth will or will not do this season. He will, as he puts it himself, very likely be in there "smackin' 'em."

Youth may now have the call in the Washington club's reorganization, as "Bark" Griffith proclaims, but the fact remains that age won two pennants for the Senators.

HAP'S BIG FIVE WINS FROM DEMI BUTCHERS

Hap's Big Five took three games of a match with the Demi Butchers Wednesday evening at the Eagle alleys, winning the match by 422 pins.

OTHER CLUBS IN LEAGUE ADMIT ALL THESE MARKS

Even if it is a long time since, it does not burden the memory to recall that the New York Yankees won the American League pennant and the world series. They also made a number of other figures that the statistics are interesting.

They won 119 games for a new American League record, won the world series in four straight, tying the big three record and took 21 straight from the St. Louis Browns for a new record.

They established new records, in hits, extra base total bases, home runs and scoring runs.

Babe Ruth made a new record of 60 home runs and Lou Gehrig made a new mark by driving in 175 runs.

APPLETON PUCKSTERS PLAY MANITOWOC MEN

Appleton high school's hockey team, organized for scholastic play for the first time this year faces a real test in its opening game Saturday afternoon. The Orangemen meet Manitowoc, long noted for its skating prowess, on a strange rink, the Manitowoc high rink. The Ships are favored to beat the locals in what is a Valley conference unofficial game.

Manitowoc plays a return game here on Feb. 11 and the week after the first Fox River Valley conference ice meet is held here. Appleton also meets Oshkosh high in two conference games this winter, the local game being played on Feb. 13 in connection with the Valley tourney here.

Readers are urged to clip this program and take it with them to the races. Everybody is invited.

RETSON-JIMOS FIVE BEATS HOTEL PINMEN

Retson and Jimos Hat Cleaner took two games of a match with the Hotel Appleton quintet Thursday evening at the Aid Association alleys, but squeezed out a win by just 9 pins.

The Hatmen opened with a 9-pin win and then lost by 116 to fall 25 maples to the rear. In the third and deciding game the R-J men copped by 34 pins to take the hard fought match by 9.

Andy Jimos was the star of the fray with a 221 high game and a 635 high series, counting three straight 200 games, 210-221-204. For the losers Ward had high game of 211 and Jacobson high series of 567. Other 200 scores were rolled by Johnston, Greason and Jacobson of the losers with 204, 200 and 202, respectively, and J. The regular weekly whirling dourles bowling tournament at the Elf alleys will be held Saturday afternoon. The meet will open at 3 o'clock.

The absence of Walter Johnson from the pitching staff will make the biggest difference in the appearance of the Senators. After 20 years it won't seem like the same club without "Old Barney" taking in a regular or occasional turn on the mound or counseling in the team's strategy.

MEUER FUELS LEAD IN STATE BOWLING EVENT

Madison—(P)—Hitting the maples for a final count of 2781, the Meuer Fuel Co. bowling five took the lead in the booster race at the twenty-sixth annual Wisconsin State Bowling tournament here Thursday night.

The Meuer team total came the second night of madcap bowling all ways expected from the boosters five. It was the first time the high score mark had been hit by the five and it came after a neat series of games that showed the team members improving with each game.

Full's Chevrolet's No. 2 also bowling on the last shift were the lone other five to register in a final count. Three consistent games for this five netted them 2440 which places them sixth in the booster standings.

BIDS FOR BRIDGE AT LITTLE CHUTE ARE REJECTED BY BOARD

Highway Body Defers Action Until After County Board Meeting

All of the second bids to build a bridge at Little Chute were rejected by the county highway committee at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon because they were too high. Further action will be deferred until after the February session of the county board.

At the November session of the board a $52,000 appropriation was made to cover the cost of the bridge which is to be built over the Fox River canal at Little Chute. The present structure has been condemned. The county board also adopted an economy program and committees were instructed not to let contracts unless the original appropriation would cover the entire cost.

The first set of bids for the bridge at Little Chute were discarded when the highway committee found that $52,000 would not cover the cost if the contract was let to the lowest bidder. Bids were called for a second time and three contractors submitted estimates.

The Simpson-Parker Construction company of Appleton was the lowest bidder with an estimate of $43,540. In addition to this cost an engineer's fee of 10 per cent of the contract price and several other small items must be paid from the original $52,000 and the highway committee felt the appropriation would be too small.

2,168 BOOKS ADDED TO RURAL LIBRARIES

Students Borrowed 17,971 Volumes During School Year, Meating Reports

Outagamie county rural school students borrowed 17,971 books from rural school libraries during the 1926-27 school year, and 5,513 books were loaned to people outside the school, according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools.

Rural school libraries have a total of 47,157 books listed in their catalogues, Mr. Meating said, and the cost is estimated at $53,230.77. During the past school year 2,168 volumes were added to the libraries at a cost of $2,127.60. Forty schools in the county furnish free text books to the students. The cost of the books is paid for by direct taxation on the district.

The money for the rural school libraries is obtained through a state law which allows 20 cents for each child of school age in the country. This money is deducted from the state school aid funds.

Books are purchased by Mr. Meating and his two supervising teachers, Miss Nellie McDermott and Arthur Collier. The amount spent in each district is determined by the number of children in the district. The library catalog is kept by the teacher who must make regular reports to Mr. Meating.

4 STUDENTS TO PRACTICE AT PUBLIC LIBRARY HERE

Four students of the library school of the University of Wisconsin will do their field practice at Lawrence college library, according to Miss Anna Tarr, librarian. Each student is assigned at least two libraries so she may receive a varied experience.

Miss Myrl Poland and Miss Cecile K. Frye will be stationed here during February, and Miss Eunice M. Hummel and Miss Laura I. Makepeace during March. The girls have been recommended by Miss Mary I. Hazeltine, dean of the library school, as the best of the class. They will work in the cataloging department of the library and in addition will be assigned other work in order to give them a diversified experience in a library.

Miss Poland has had some experience in library work, having been the student assistant in the library of the Iowa State Teachers college, and also in the cataloging department of the public library at Waterloo, Iowa.

"Americanitis"

The speed at which we Americans live has given rise to a group of serious nervous and high blood pressure disturbances aptly described as "Americanitis". It's responsible for many break-downs and deaths at middle age.

Men who work hard, smoke hard and play hard overburden the liver whose job it is to keep the blood and system clean of poisons formed in food waste. Then follows an insidious toxic condition which saps strength and energy, increases blood pressure and hardens arteries.

The liver occasionally needs a little help and there's nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few make a vast difference. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol.

Free Test Take this ad to the druggist named below and he will give you a free sample of Dioxol tablets. Try them yourself. See the splendid, quick results. One trial of Dioxol and you will want a full package! Special Agent: Schlitz Bros. Co.

No Activity At Teapot Dome As Fields Revert To Navy

Casper, Wyo. —(AP)—Teapot Dome longer booms and bustles with activity.

Shut in oil wells and gassers, silent pumping stations and an all but deserted camp are evidence that the big field, 38 miles north of Casper, has resumed its former status as a naval petroleum reserve.

So it will remain, under present naval policies until its store of petroleum and its products are needed.

The field has been formally returned to the government by the Mammoth Oil Company, a Sinclair subsidiary, under a Cheyenne federal court decree after the United States supreme court decision holding its transfer void.

Extensive camp buildings, a score of steel tanks with an aggregate capacity of 1,500,000 barrels; pumping stations and equipment, drilling rigs, casing in wells and oil pipelines, constructed and installed on the reserve by the Mammoth company, reverted to ownership of the navy department under the decree.

Such incidents as automobiles and furniture were salvaged by the Sinclair interests, but their only other hope for reimbursement would rest with congress.

The Mammoth company lost no time in beginning development operations after the lease was obtained. Drilling on the first well was commenced on July 11, 1922, and was completed the following Oct. 5. Before the field was thrown into receivership March 13, 1924, operations had resulted in 60 oil wells, 12 gassers and 17 dry holes.

The field has an area of 9,321 acres, of which 2,403 acres are believed to be oil bearing and 1,500 gas bearing on the face of drilling already accomplished.

The first Wall Creek sand, a prolific producer of crude oil in the adjoining Salt Creek field and estimated by geologists to contain 30,000,000 barrels of oil in Teapot was found almost barren of oil, but the second and third Wall Creek sands both were proved for oil.

Shut-in gassers in the first sand, it was estimated, have aggregated a potential flow of 200,000,000 feet daily.

Oil wells drilled by the Mammoth company reached their peak in average production during June, 1923, when they gave up 273 barrels a day

THRIFT BANKING IN SCHOOLS ON DECLINE

Decrease of One Per Cent Is Shown in Public Schools for Week Ending Jan. 17

A decrease of one per cent is shown in their thrift banking of Appleton public school pupils the week ending Jan. 17, from 91 per cent to 90 per cent, according to the last banking statement. The total amount deposited during the week was $783.25 by 3,091 depositors out of a total enrollment of 3,310. The interest credited for this period amounted to $11.82, withdrawals to $108.44, making the balance on deposit at the end of the week $30,622.31.

Six schools show 100 per cent records in thrift banking: Columbus, each. In November of the same year, the daily output reached a peak of 4,460 barrels.

Lack of new production, however, through suspension of drilling, resulted in a steady decline in the output. The field was averaging only 300 barrels a day when the wells were shut in on its return to the navy.

WHOLESALE COSTS SUBJECT FOR STUDY

Conference at Washington
Will Bring Forth Decades
Changes in Industry

Describing wholesaling as a dark spot in distribution, W. M. G. Howse, president of the National Wholesale Dry Goods association, has called a national conference for Feb. 14 and 15 at Washington, D. C., for the purpose of determining what part wholesaling plays in distribution. The conference is sponsored by the department of domestic distribution of the chamber of commerce of the United States of which Mr. Howse also is chairman. He will act as chairman of the conference, according to a notice of the session received at the Appleton chamber of commerce this week.

The meeting will bring together outstanding men in the wholesale field, representatives of all the more important trades, and economists to discuss problems affecting wholesaling and to map out a general program for the improvement of conditions in this branch of distribution.

"There is uncertainty concerning the exact situation in the wholesale field at this time," he said in his meeting call, "and there is even greater uncertainty as to what developments may be expected. It is evident that wholesaling in many lines is profoundly disturbed. Wholesalers themselves hold widely divergent opinions. In different branches of trade they are confronted with a variety of conditions which are meeting in a variety of ways.

"What distribution functions are being performed by wholesalers and how are they being performed? What is the place of wholesaling in the distribution of the country's merchandise and what is its relation to other branches of industry? These are questions which were answered with much difficulty in 1918. But at the beginning of 1928 we have no definite answers. Instead there are speculations, opinions, and greatly differing reports from various trades.

"During these years the wholesale situation has been deeply affected by many developments—increased production, changes in output, and other houses, changing store sales and direct selling. The result has been a great difference in the conditions of wholesaling.

It isn't merely a case of "off with the old, on with the new" when you change from ordinary coffee to "Kept-fresh by McLaughlin" Coffee, but a matter of substituting strictly fresh coffee for stale coffee that has stood too long on the grocer's shelf.

"Kept-fresh" Coffee is roasted and shipped the day your grocer's order is received. Ground only upon your order, it is as its name implies kept fresh for meal time.

Take advantage now of this new "Kept-fresh" Service. Order a pound of McLaughlin's popular "99 1/2" blend selling at 47c a pound.

GUGGENHEIM GIVES PRIZES TO SPEED SAFE AIR TRAVEL

Foundation Offers $100,000 to Successful Entrants in Safety Contests

New York—(AP)—Man's mastery of the air has reached a point, the Daniel Guggenheim Foundation for Promotion of Aeronautics believes, at which the factor of safety must be given greater attention if the possibilities of aircraft are to be adapted to transportation.

To hasten the day when a reliable plane in the hands of any good pilot will be as safe as a railroad train or a motor car, directors of the Guggenheim fund have set aside $100,000 in prizes, to be awarded to plans which meet most satisfactorily nine requirements for airplane safety.

7 ALREADY ENTERED
The competition is to be concluded by Oct. 31, 1929. Five British and two American manufacturers of aircraft already have entered the race. These are the nine tests with which aircraft must comply:

The plane must maintain level and controlled flight at a speed not greater than 35 miles an hour and must be able to glide for three minutes with all power switched off, during which the speed must not exceed 35 miles an hour.

The plane must come to a complete stop within 100 feet of the spot where it first touches the ground in landing.

A steady glide must be made over an obstruction 35 feet high and the plane must come to a complete stop within 200 feet of the base of the obstruction. This is to test the ship's ability to make a forced landing in a small space surrounded by wires, houses or trees.

MUST FLY ALONE
The plane must clear a 35-foot-high obstruction from a starting point 500 feet away.

With all power switched off, the plane must glide at an angle of not more than eight and not less than sixteen degrees and at a speed not greater than 45 miles an hour, to test its ability to approach an uncertain landing place in event of engine failure.

In normal flight, at a speed of 45 to 100 miles an hour, the pilot must take both hands off the controls for at least five minutes, to demonstrate the ability of his craft to right itself after disturbances from wind gusts or from application of controls.

The plane must show that if its engine fails it will assume a gently gliding position and make an easy landing. The pilot must pull his elevator control to a maximum extent at the moment the power is switched off and the ship must descend on a steep glide at a speed of not more than 40 miles an hour.

Three independent controls must be placed on the ship, any of which will keep it in perfect control if the others are switched off.

HAVE RICH PRIZES
The plane must show its ability to take off and to land on a plot 500 feet square surrounded by a 25-foot obstruction and it must taxi under its own power along the ground against a strong wind.

Of the prize money, $100,000 will go to the competitor whose entry wins the highest number of points in four of the nine safety tests. Ten thousand dollars will go to each of the first five entries to satisfy all the requirements.

Judges are Orville Wright, R. Truett Davidson, assistant secretary of war for aeronautics; Edward P. Warner, assistant navy secretary for aeronautics; William P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics; Commander Richard E. Byrd and Dr. George W. Lewis. Three technical advisers—Prof. Alexander Klemin of New York University, Maj. R. F. Mayo and Lt. E. E. Aldrin of Massachusetts Institute of Technology will assist the judges.

WANT TRAVEL MADE SAFE
"Any effort to make air traffic an integral part of our national commercial life," says Harry Guggenheim, president of the fund, "must first reduce and as nearly as possible overcome the popular skepticism of air transportation."

"The average man likes to send his mail by air but he lets somebody else do the flying. If present air hazards are reduced, air traffic will come into its own as a common method of transportation."

Capeskin Kid Gloves, values $3.95 and $4.50. Special Saturday—$2.49.

BOTH HANDS OFF THE CONTROLS 5 MINUTES OR MORE

Safety in flying is the objective for which the Guggenheim Foundation has offered $100,000 in prizes to aircraft makers. Among nine safety tests which must be met are the three illustrated above: Ability to clear a 35-foot obstacle at 500 feet (top); to land within 500 feet after clearing a similar barrier (center); and to fly at 45 to 100 miles an hour for five minutes with the pilot's hands off the controls (below). The tests will be conducted at Mitchell Field, L. I.

INSTITUTES FORMED TO SOLVE PROBLEMS

Larger Companies Have Own Organizations to Delve into Subjects

New York—(AP)—If there are any business secrets left they probably owe their existence to the lack of an "institute" in the industry, with which they are concerned.

Stabilization appears to be the order of the day in industry, and the first aid to stabilization is sought in many instances through organization of an "institute." The copper industry, feeling the need of stabilization, formed its new Copper Institute as 1927 closed. The sugar industry organized the Sugar Institute as 1927 opened. In the office, woolen and worsted manufacturers are getting together over plans for a Woolen Institute.

The industries already have insti-

Concrete, dry milk, drop forging, iron and steel, petroleum, rayon, shovel and cordage manufacturers saw the vision months or years ago. A host of professional men also have their institutes, among them the accountants, actuaries, architects, bankers, chemists, engineers, etc.

Such organizations are composed of representatives of various companies and corporations in the various fields of endeavor. They are careful to avoid any indication of being price-fixing combinations, banned by the federal government since trust-busting days. Their charters and by-laws are filed at Washington, they are not represented solely as clearing-houses of ethics, information, statistics and methods for their respective industries.

Undoubtedly the institutes are real assets to these industries. They make trade information readily available to all interested. They devise systems of cost accounting, establish credit bureaus, act as public relations counsel and are ever on the lookout for something new in research, methods and business sources.

While the institutes have entirely replaced the older trade associations, to a great degree they have taken the initiative and assumed much of the executive responsibility. This is ascribed to the fact that they are under the immediate direction of an executive, not always from the trade, who has a talent for organization, a personality which invites co-operation, a diplomacy invaluable in trade disputes and sufficient energy and ability to carry through to completion the most delicate and difficult programs. And while the component firms may be the nominal heads of the institutes, these executive officers actually rule as the spokesmen and chief arbiters of the industries.

SMEAR it on the toast at breakfast, great lumps of it. You'll want to eat twice as much as you did yesterday morning. Spread it on your bread at luncheon. It can be used in half a dozen different ways at dinner. And for that snack at night it makes appetizing sandwiches.

Spread Oak Grove Margarine all round the clock. Bake with it. You can use it in place of the shortening usually called for in recipes. Cakes have a delicate, tender texture. Pies and pastries are flaky. Put a lump on the steak or chops right off the broiler. Add it to the pan-gravy.

Oak Grove Margarine is made fresh daily under U. S. Government inspection. It is pure, sweet and delicious. It spreads smoothly. Try a pound. If you are not satisfied, your grocer will cheerfully refund your money.

Baking Powder Biscuits

2 cups flour, 4 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp salt, 2 tbsp. Oak Grove, ¾ cup milk.

Method. Mix well the dry ingredients, put with oleomargarine, add milk gradually. Toss on a floured board, pat and roll lightly until ½-inch thick. Shape, put in greased pan and bake in hot oven from 12 to 15 minutes.

JACK LOCKWILL'S HELPING HAND

When the second half opened, Maddox was on the floor as one of Hargon's team. Within a minute, he fouled Jack, and the latter, given a free throw, caged the ball.

Price Hargon's sister, Jane, and her chum, Betty Darling, were in the balcony. "I can't see why my brother has anything to do with that Maddox fellow!" said Jane.

Relaying on Maddox to take care of Lockwill, Hargon quickly demonstrated that he was a swift and clever player. Round after round of applause came from his admirers, of whom there were many in the freshman class. Having been warned by the referee, Cub watched for a chance to try to smash Lockwill cold. It came. He crashed into Jack, hurled him down, and fell on him.
